

ALL THE SONG INSIDE OF YOU

I wake up to the morning rain that gently blows the curtains in and every time the day begins with you all I want to do
is sing
with all the song inside of you.

I only wanted to believe when you were every word I breathed and everything I thought that I could see was true that for a moment too that I could ever be
all the song inside of you

would you use your love to deceive me would you trust it enough to believe me that all I want is you.

The darkness of a note that flows through everything you don't let go and all you don't pretend to show, I knew was yours to hold on to and mine to love
with all the song inside of you.

would you use your love to deceive me
would you trust it enough to believe me
that all I want is you.

I wake up to the morning rain
that gently blows the curtains in
and every time the day begins with you
all I want to do
is sing
with all the song inside of you.

Would you care if you knew you'd hurt me could I count on you to be there with me when all I want is you and all the song inside of you.